

The Daily Courant.

Monday, March 15. 1708.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated March 20.

Presburg, March 5.

THE first of this Month, arriv'd here Prince Esterhazy Palatine of Hungary, and went with his usual Attendants to his Palace. The 2d in the Morning the States of the Country had Audience of him to bid him Welcom: And he Signified to them that they should assemble the next Day at 10 in the Morning, when he would make a Proposition to them. They met accordingly the 3d, and the Prince Palatine, the Cardinal of Saxe-Zeyts as Primate of the Kingdom, and the other Prelates, Barons, and Deputies, having taken their proper Places, the Prince Palatine acquainted the Assembly, 'That this Diet was call'd to re-establish the Tranquility of their native Country; and seeing it was requisite to that end, that all the States of Hungary, as well the unfaithful as the faithful, should be present, it was necessary to invite the former to send their Deputies likewise to the Assembly. Hereupon 4 Deputies were chosen out of the several Orders or States of the Kingdom, to go to Vienna, to acquaint the Emperour with this proposition and to desire his Approbation of it; as also to beseech his Imperial Majesty, to defer a while (till it be seen what Course the Malecontents will take) his Departure from Vienna for this City; and to nominate and send Commissioners with full Powers to be present on the Part of his Imperial Majesty in the Assembly, which in the mean time should be begun and held. The faithful States of the Kingdom judging, that the first and principal Step towards settling a lasting Peace, is to invite, in the Name of them the said faithful States already assembled here, those of the contrary Party with whom that Peace is to be made; have resolv'd, as soon as they have obtain'd the Emperour's Leave, to send some of their principal Members to endeavour to prevail with those of the contrary Party to repair to this present Diet. The Cardinal of Saxe-Zeyts has from the Pulpit commanded, that during this Diet publick Devotions shall be perform'd daily in all the Churches of this City, to implore Peace from the Almighty. Count Maximilian Staremberg's Lady, having desir'd Leave of the Malecontents to go to her Husband who is their Prisoner, has obtain'd a Passport for that purpose.

Vienna, March 7. Count Maximilian Staremberg, who was some Days ago taken Prisoner by a Party of the Malecontents near Wartburg, is carry'd to Neuheusel: Whence 'tis advis'd, that General Hartleben having speedy Notice of the Count's being taken, detach'd with all possible Diligence some Horse of the Regiment of Hohenzollern to overtake that Party; but they came too late by half an Hour to the Waag, which the Malecontents had pass'd: However, the commanding Officer of that Detachment was allow'd to pass the River alone, to speak with the Count, and repass in safety. When the Marshal of the Imperial Court signified a few Days ago to the foreign Ministers, that the Emperour designing to make but 4 or 5 Days Stay at Presbourg, they might spare themselves the Trouble of going thither, the Dutch Envoy an-swer'd that he had no Design of going thither unless he should be invited, but the Danish Minister said he must go thither about Affairs of the King his Master. Men begin to doubt, that the Diet at Presbourg will have no good Issue, because the Malecontents send no Deputies to it, and Peace cannot be made by one Party alone. The 3d Instant the States that are at Presbourg assembled, and the Palatine acquainted them, that the Emperour out of his Paternal Care to re-establish the Peace and Tranquility of the Kingdom had most graciously call'd this general Diet of the States, and that he design'd himself to be assistant in Person to the accomplishing so good a Work, and to the restoring the fundamental Laws of the Kingdom to their full Force and Virtue; but that the Malecontents not having sent Deputies to this Diet, in Compliance with his Imperial Majesty's circulatory Letters of invitation, it might be convenient, superabundantly to condescend to depute some Members of the assembled States to persuade them to give their Appearance: Which Motion was approv'd by the States. And in Consequence thereof, the Bishop of great Waradin on the Part of the Clergy, Count Nadaffy on the Part of the Nobility, M. Viat on the Part of the Counties, and M. Rosser on the Part of the Towns, were deputed hither: And the 5th had Audience of his Imperial Majesty, thank'd him for calling the Diet, and besought him to approve the sending of Deputies from the Diet to invite the Malecontents to it: The Emperour answer'd, that he would take it into Consideration, and send to Presbourg his Resolution thereon. We are assur'd the Court will agree to it; but that they are not willing the Cardinal of Saxe-Zeyts should be of that Deputation, though he has offer'd himself to be of it, and given Hope it may have a good Effect. In the mean time Prince Ragotski has drawn his Troops so near together, that in 2 days he can form an Army of 30000 Men; and 'tis probable he will endeavour to disturb the Diet; nay some fear he will besiege Presbourg, but that is very unlikely. There is a Rumour of this Court's treating with King Augustus for 20000 Auxiliaries, and sending Prince Eugene to Hungary to crush the Rebellion by Force of Arms, if the Malecontents continue refractory and untractable.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated March 20.

Milan, March 7. The Deputies of this State who have been at Vienna, are return'd hither with the Count of Monte-Castro, well satisfied with the Success of their Negotiations, and the great Honours shew'd them at the Imperial Court. Prince Maurice, Nephew of Prince Eugene of Savoy, set out from hence some Days ago for Vienna. Prince Eugene is not expected here of a long Time, and 'tis said Count Tann is to come and command in this State during his Absence. In the mean while we have receiv'd Orders to augment our Guards considerably, that they may make a good Appearance here on the Arrival of the Royal Bride of King Charles III, in her Way to embark for Barcelona. A great Quantity of Bread-Corn, Oats, and Hay is getting ready to be sent to Catalonia with the Convoy that is to carry that Princess thither: 'Tis said that Convoy will likewise take with them the 3 Regiments of Palatine Horse, 3 Imperial Regiments, and some Troops of the Milaneze.
